Undercurrent: Canadian Undergraduate Journal of Development Studies

Special Issue: Global Health

From multilateral initiatives to address HIV/AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis to civil society agitation in support of supervised injection sites in Canadian cities, global health issues have attracted unprecedented funding and debate in recent years. In light of the centrality of health interventions in international development, Undercurrent is pleased to announce a Special Issue focusing exclusively on Global Health.

Submission Details

Due Date: March 31, 2010

Undercurrent is the only student-run national undergraduate journal publishing scholarly essays and articles that explore the subject of international development. The journal is a refereed publication dedicated to providing a non-partisan, supportive, yet critical and competitive forum exclusively for undergraduate research and writing.

Submissions are currently being accepted for the Autumn 2010 Special Issue of Undercurrent. Acceptable submissions include academic essays or photographs related to global health topics from undergraduate students at Canadian post-secondary institutions. Faculty members are urged to encourage undergraduate students (or recent graduates) to submit outstanding work to the journal. Topical papers are accepted from any academic discipline, and may include coursework past or present.

Acceptance is determined by the undergraduate editors, through a twice-run process of blind peer review, with the input of faculty advisors. Submissions will be evaluated according to the following criteria: relevance to a broad audience, technical merit/quality of research, creativity, originality, clarity of expression and relevance to global health issues. Accepted papers are published in semi-annual volumes of the journal in .pdf format on the Undercurrent website and for purchase in print.

General Submission information, including eligibility, manuscript details, citation style, review process, and notifications can be found at: <http://www.undercurrentjournal.ca/submissions/index.htm>
