

CYHRNet's Searchable Member Database:

BC's Child and Youth Health Research Community at Your Fingertips

Basic Search:

Type any keyword into the database's search engine. This could be a first or last name, research interest, area of methodological expertise, institution or city. All member records containing this keyword will appear in the search results.

Helpful Hint:

Results too broad? Narrow them down by clicking on one of the terms in the Guided search panel (right, top). This will display only those records which contain both the original keyword and the selected guided search term. Alternately, you can use the search engine to search within the results for an additional keyword.

Results too narrow? Click the [X] beside a search term in the Current search panel (right, bottom) to discard that search criteria and broaden your results.

Search Results:

Click on a member's name to open that member's database record. Here you can find more information about the person's affiliations, research interests, methodological expertise and contact details.

Helpful Hint:

For added search power, click on any detail within a member's record, such as the member's organization, a research interest or area of methodological expertise. This will conduct a search for all members within the database who share the selected detail.
